Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 30 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Cloud pushing inland overnight. Warm and sunny for most Monday.

This Evening and Tonight:
A dry and fine evening away from coastal districts, which will continue to see patches of mist, fog and low cloud. Cloud pushing inland through the early hours but staying dry throughout. A little chilly in rural spots by dawn. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Monday:
A dry and fine day for much of the region with any early cloud burning back to the coast. Feeling warm, but cooler and fresher on the coast. Maximum temperature 23 deg C (73 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Tuesday and Wednesday dry with warm sunny spells. Low cloud pushing inland overnight, retreating to the coast by day. Rain pushing northeast Thursday, then turning fresher.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.